

Abstract of the Disclosure

An information system for use in a hospital includes a mobile terminal for inputting and 5 outputting data relating to medical activities at an execution site of the medical activities in the hospital, a hospital information management system for managing information in the hospital, and a server for controlling communications of data 10 relating to medical activities between the mobile terminal and the hospital information management system.